EXPERT REPORTS ON OGDEN WATER SYSTEM

Samuel Fortier, Experienced Engineer, Gives the City Valuable Pointers.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Aug. 23.—Samuel Fortier, an engineer of wide experience, now in the employ of the government, and the builder of the water system now owned by Ogden City, has completed his report of the physical condition of the plant and offers a number of suggestions and recommendations for the improvement of the system and the improvement of its property.

Mr. Fortier has completed his searching inspection of the property at the request of Mayor A. L. Brewer, who accepted the challenge of "Bill" Glassman to show that the system is a paying proposition to the city. The report is a voluminous one, covering nearly two dozen typewritten pages.

Mr. Fortier, commenting upon the schedule of water rates now in vogue, declares that they are reasonable, and takes occasion to point out that the rates of electric light and water, considered by submitting a comparative statement of water and light bills of several business houses.

Since Mr. Fortier personally supervised the construction of the Ogden waterworks plant twenty years ago, he is perhaps more familiar with its condition than any one. The constantly increasing size of Ogden City has rendered it imperative that the water system be enlarged. New communities are being built up, and additional water to the city is needed. The population of the city probably reaching 40,000 in a few years, the present city authorities have concluded that provision should be made for a greater water system for Ogden. With this in view, the assistance of Samuel Fortier was sought, as well as to show the present condition of the system and to recommend plans for its enlargement.

Mr. Fortier offers a number of suggestions as to how this can be done. One plan is to divide the city into two separate districts with a twenty-four inch water main to supply each district. This would necessitate the installation of another twenty-four inch pipe from the reservoir to the city. To increase the water supply, the engineer suggests that it would be possible to install a twenty-inch main in Cold Water canyon, which, added to the ten-inch main already there, during ten months of the year, a supply of twenty-four inches of water could be obtained from this source. The three sites for reservoirs owned by the city in South Park canyon could also be utilized to great advantage and a considerable larger flow of water obtained from that district.

Mr. Fortier calls attention to the fact that considerable damage has resulted to Ogden City's water pipe line in the past by the Pioneer Electric Power company in the construction of a six-foot pipe line fourteen years ago and allowing large holes to roll into the trench where the water pipes were located, filling it in some places from ten to fifteen feet. This damage could be remedied, he said, by the expenditure of $10,000.

President Simeon Bamberger of the Salt Lake & Ogden Railway company petitioned the council to require the Ogden Rapid Transit company to build a new grade one foot at the corner of Wall avenue and Thirty-second street. Mr. Bamberger said that the grade established at this point by the Ogden Rapid Transit company will work a hardship on his railroad when the construction of the Lincoln avenue bridge begins. He said that the Ogden Rapid Transit company should be required to pay the expense of reducing the grade if the city orders the work done. The matter was referred to the streets committee and the city engineer. The committee and streets committee recommended that Hudson avenue be opened from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth street. The city engineer was instructed to publish a notice of intention. A number of other routine matters were discussed and the usual payrolls and bills allowed.

Paris Needs Improvement and is Beginning to Realize Her Condition

PARIS, Aug. 23.—It had long been realized that much had still to be done for the improvement of Paris. The Baron Haussmann scheme, colossal as it was, has only been partially executed, and, moreover, as time rolls on, a necessary touch of modern life has been added. It must also be admitted that Paris has been somewhat neglected of late years. Although any number of old houses have been pulled down and replaced by others, with every modern comfort, and entire rows of new streets have arisen, it was not until the late war that the city began to realize her condition.

In order to give a more complete picture of the Paris which has been built up by Haussmann, it may be mentioned that in one lot of twelve streets, containing 281 houses, with 275 inhabitants, up to 1870 there were 150 deaths, and in 1871 there were 150 deaths. This was the first work seriously undertaken by the city. The work, however, was not completed until 1871, when the city was taken over by the Germans. The work was not completed until 1871, when the city was taken over by the Germans. The work was not completed until 1871, when the city was taken over by the Germans.

Mr. Briand is well seated in his chair, prime minister, but the downward of Clemenceau's cabinet is still being explained. The difference between the Clemenceau cabinet and a United-States cabinet is that the Clemenceau cabinet will take him fully an hour's explanation, while neither he nor any one else is fully understood by the French. The French cabinet crisis has been explained on a basis of the Clemenceau cabinet, which was extended to a certain number of years.

These are the principal items of a very important project, which is being well advanced by the city. The project is a plan to improve the city of Paris. The project is a plan to improve the city of Paris. The project is a plan to improve the city of Paris.
